La habitación de al lado.

Memory is unquestionably the underpinnings on which her prolific work rests, always from an experimental angle, always alive and in constant change. Based on an archaeological vision of objects and images, the artist appropriates these “archives”, only to deconstruct, resignify and recompose them to create an unmistakable personal language all of her own, laying down a solid discourse on universal issues such as religion, education, love and sex. Leveraging the legacy of surrealism, her works bring together the power of objects with a fundamental demand for the spectator to adopt a critical gaze.
